

Lake Nokomis
Lutheran Church

Holy Communion and Online Worship

Holy Communion is God's gift for our faith. With the words, "this is my body given for you ... this is my blood shed for you," God promises to come to us in a most intimate way, into our very selves. God is with us in a real way, and we can feel, taste, and smell God's presence in the elements of bread and wine.

Holy Communion is an act of love. It is God's love physically entering into us. In preparation for receiving God's grace in this sacrament, you're invited to think about what it is about communion that is important to you. Imagine and delight in God's pleasure in coming to you in Holy Communion. Reflect on our connection and responsibility to people throughout the world, and our connection to all of creation as the Spirit of Christ unites us.

An Order for Communing in a Pandemic

by Anonymous

*She took a loaf of bread, broke it and gave it, half to the hungry, the poor, the millions whose gap-toothed pantries are emptying, dwindling sand racing through the widening neck of an hourglass and she felt the weight of a sacrament pressing into her soul as the body and blood of Christ spilled out of doors,
into streets,
into homes,
flowing as freely,
as slick and messy,
as uncontrolled,
as it did from his own tortured body, as if God really could be present everywhere and in everything.*

from Diana Butler Bass, On Hoarding Eucharist in a Hungry World <https://churchanew.org/blog/posts/2020/05/01/butlerbass1>

Preparing for Holy Communion in your home

1. Set your mind and heart in anticipation of God about to enter your day.
2. Set a place for communion. It can be where you eat meals. It can be at a table, on a TV tray, or on a coffee table. A cross or candle or some other spiritual symbol can be included.
3. The bread should be a form that you typically eat for meals, such as a slice of whole wheat bread, a bagel, or a cracker.
4. The “wine” can be any type of wine, red or white. It can also be any type of juice or other beverage you typically include with meals. Water is a good alternative to wine and was historically used when wine was not available.
5. Set the elements out prior to the worship service.
6. Give yourself a few moments of quiet and rest before beginning.
7. Even though the communion service is recorded ahead of time, the Holy Spirit of God is present always and transcends time. This communion takes place in Christian community even though at a different chronological time and a virtual place.